CITY HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM FIRE

A fire scare about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning made property-owners shiver worse than the zero weather. The incident occurred in the second story of the boarding house conducted by the Misses Van Allen on Oak street, just east of the Galcier office. A rousing fire in one of the bed rooms charred the mortar at the bottom of the shelf chimney until sparks ignited the woodwork and began to fill the

The cold weather had frozen all the water pipes and there was not a drop of water in the house. Luckily several men were in the building. They at once rushed out and secured water while some one made his way to the attic from whence the water was poured down onto the fire between the walls and the flames extinguished. It was a narrow escape. While no serious damage was done, had the fire gained another moment's headway, the whole business section of the city

But communities will save money and be better served if it is fully realized that the limitations of weather are real and that anyone who claims to forecast beyond a limited period is in all probability as much an imposter as the so-called seers who read the future and tell other people how to invest their money.

The United States weather department at Washington has been making quite an effort of late to discredit the "long range" weather predictions of certain "prophets" notably Irl R. Hicks of St. Louis, and he has replied so viogrously that it seems to an impartiel observer as if the department had got the worst of it. There have been several challenges and counterchallenges, and Hicks has made this one: He will make a forecast by his system of what the weather is to be a country by including the country with its discussion.
